Water Ski Hall of Fame Inducts BAREFOOT WORLD CHAMPION MIKE SEIPEL

On April 20, 2000, at a banquet in Winter Haven, Florida, the American Water Ski Educational Foundation made Mike Seipel the 44th inductee into the Water Ski Hall of Fame.

For fans of water skiing, Mike Seipel's name is synonymous with barefoot water skiing. The Wisconsin native played a major role in transforming barefooting from a curiosity into today's sophisticated sport. While recreational barefooting was still relatively unknown, Seipel foresaw its potential. He gave the young sport the spark it needed, pioneering as competitors, promoter, instructor, and product developer.

Skier: The Seipel story contains many firsts. His meteoric rise to the top of the barefoot world began in 1970, when he learned to barefoot at the age of 10. Barefooting then was a stunt performed by daredevils in ski shows. During the 70's, Seipel honed his footing skills as he performed in a Wisconsin show ski club, the Waterbugs. Although many people ridiculed Seipel's relentless effort to learn then unheard-of maneuvers, he persisted, exhibiting the determination that became his trademark.

Competitive barefooting was in its infancy in the late nineteen seventies. Seipel's youthful exuberance, dedication and skill could not have come at a better time for the growth and development of the sport. In 1978, Seipel, with 41 other athletes, attended the first U.S. National Barefoot Championship in Waco, Texas. Seipel joined the United States Barefoot Team and competed at the first world barefoot championships ad Canberra, Australia, in November 1978.

Promoter: Seipel made his debut on the national media stage in 1980, when he made two appearances on the popular ABC television show, That's

Incredible. His demonstrations of sophisticated maneuvers such as toe turns and barefoot jumping showed the public, for the first time, barefooting's best moves. Seipel went on to demonstrate high-level barefooting on other national programs, including PM Magazine, You Asked For It, and MTV Sports.

Competitor: In the early 80's, when barefoot tricks were often done in a rough-and-tumble way, Seipel gave the sport needed elegance as he perfected many maneuvers in a clean, upright style. This sophisticated technique allowed him to set world records in the trick event. He was the first footer to do the one-foot 360 turn and a stepover back-to-front feet-to-foet in competition. He was the first U.S. footer to accomplish the toe turn.

Seipel destroyed the competition in jumping when he pioneered the inverted style. Before Seipel developed the arresting style - in 1990, every competitor jumped in the "chair" position. The only one to use the laid-out position, he easily won the 1990 national and world jump titles along with setting national and world jump records.

When Seipel retired from competition in 1995, after 17 years on the grueling circuit, he had accumulated 11 national titles, four event world titles, two overall world titles, and none world records. An omnipotent competitor, Seipel had been named to the U.S. team nine times.

Instructor: In the early 80's, when specialized schools for barefooting did not exist, Seipel began the first year-round school for barefoot water skiing. The school, in Lantana, Florida, drew both first-time learners and a "Who's Who" from the competitive scene. Students trekked to Seipel's school from every corner of the planet. To spread his knowledge throughout the country, he set up branches of his Barefoot International school in Byron, California, and Milwaukee, Wisconsin, seizing the moment, Seipel hit the road, conducting coaching clinics for eager students throughout North America, Europe, Australia, Africa and Asia.

Product Developer: Without argument, the tool most responsible for taking barefooting from a stunt to a mainstream activity is the horizontal boom. Though a few skiers used makeshift booms in earlier years, Seipel became the first, in 1981, to manufacture and market a boom for consumers. The aircraft-aluminum bar, which dramatically reduces the time needed to learn barefooting, became the cornerstone product of his family-run company in Milwaukee, Barefoot International, Ltd. Other products quickly followed.

Today: Following retirement from competition, Seipel has continued his zeal and focus on instructing students at his south Florida school, as well as developing and promoting his product line.

KRETCHMAN HONORED AT U.S. NATIONALS

Local Boy Named "Barefooter of the Year"

When Jon Kretchman hit the road to head for Houston and the U.S. Barefoot Nationals two weeks ago, he could never have known how rewarding his trip would turn out to be. Not only did he better 84 feet to capture the jumping title, but he was also named National "Barefooter of the Year."

When asked how he felt about the reception of such a significant honor, an award which recognizes the complete scope of one's contributions to the barefoot community, Jon was, again, humbled. "My acceptance speech was oriented around my support system," he said. "I told those in attendance I would not accept the award myself, but that I would accept it on behalf of that support system.

Without those people, I would not be here."

Jon referred to a number of people as he considered the significant influences in his life. He thanked the barefoot fraternity in general for the comradery and support they have provided throughout the years. He mentioned several of the sponsors who have afforded both opportunities and assistance as he has pursued his goals in the sport. Jon also shared his gratitude for the many members of the Upper Midwest Barefoot Water Ski Association who have been such an important part of his life, and for the late Ed Buhr, a long time advocate of barefooting in the state of Minnesota.

Those who know Jon understand the overwhelming importance his family; those present, such as his Dad, his wife and his daughter, and those "no longer present," holds in his life. Last but not least, Jon cited His thankfulness to God, "the source of my strength."

OUT OF SITE!

Fantastic, isn't it! Take a look around. The site for the 2000 World Barefoot Championships is a beautiful setting. It wasn't always this functional, of course, as this photo suggests. This is what the site used to look like, before guys like Mark Cory (left - a Shoremaster employee who was actually one of the original members of the Upper Midwest Barefoot Water Ski Association), Otter Tail Power's Jason Westholter (center), Craig Wilberts (right), and countless others toiled long and hard to make this a comfortable, clean place to watch this exciting event. Sit back and enjoy the fruits of their labor. They did this for you!

Westholter, Steve Ness and Jim Fish chaired the Venue Committee which has coordinated all of the site preparations. Westholter said the site has "almost doubled in size from '96 to make it more comfortable for the spectators." He also said workers have created "new on-site parking" for footin' fans, as well. Jim Fish is an active member of the Fergus Falls City Council and his assistance in this process has been invaluable. He has done a great service to the event by maintaining clear lines of communication between the city and the committee. Steve Ness (along with Target and Walmart!) is the guy responsible for the monitors. Thanks, Venue Crew!

DAVID SMALL

Great Britain - Age 16

David is now in his 4th year of competitive skiing, getting his start at age 13. His interest in the sport began with the help of his parents, and he quickly had a number of titles to his credit, including World and European Junior Barefoot Champion as well as a 2nd place honor in Open Men at the 2000 European Championships. David gives credit not only to his parents, but to Clive Wilsdon, as well. "They all gave me their time..and the training advice," said Small. While David is only in grade 12, his future ambitions are to become an airline pilot. His hobbies include water skiing, and rugby. He makes his home in Burntwood, England.

CLIVE WILSDON

Great Britain - Age 38

Clive, who makes his home in Walton-On-Thames, England, is a stunt rider by trade and a barefoot skier since the age of 25. He credits his partner, and soon to be his wife, Lesley, for being his biggest supporter. "She gives me lots of time out to barefoot," said Wilsdon. Clive and Lesley have actually chosen the Otter Tail River banks as the site for their wedding, which will take place during this tournament!

When asked about his first visit to Fergus Falls in 1996, he responded, "I remember what a warm welcome the local people gave us!" Clive lists his hobbies as motorcycling and high diving, and his future plans are to become a millionaire! Clive and Lesley have one child, Charlotte.

WARREN BRADLEY FINE

South Africa - Age 26

Warren took up the great sport of bare-foot skiing at the age of 13, also the age at which he began to compete. He credits his friend, Rael Nurik for the introduction the the sport and his family and friends for their continued support. The greatest challenge for Warren? "The inverted jump," he says, and future career plans? "To get married!" Warren makes his home in Bedfordview, South Africa.

GRAHAM RANSOM

South Africa - Age 17

Graham began his barefooting career at the early age of 11, and one year later at age 12, began to ski competitively. Like Nadine, Graham credits his father with having introduced him to barefooting. He, too, says his family his a huge part of the support it takes to train and compete. When asked

A SENSATIONAL SOUTH AFRICAN. . .

She has won a total of twenty-one medals at world championships since 1995, yet she is genuinely humble. She is the number-one ranked female barefooter in the world in tricks, slalom and jumping, yet she still displays a daily drive to be better. She is favored to win the overall title at the 12th World Barefoot Water Skiing Championships in Fergus Falls, yet her first priority is to make a “contribution to possibly put our team into the medals.” She is Nadine De Villiers.

De Villiers, a seasoned veteran at the youthful age of 18, is from South Africa, and her list of activities and accomplishments leads one to believe she is fond of precious “medals” ... primarily those cast in gold and silver. 18 of the medals Nadine has accumulated in world competitions are either gold or silver. For those who did not get a chance to see her display her considerable talents when she was in Fergus Falls for the ‘96 Worlds, prepare to be amazed. For those who have valiantly embraced the unenviable task of “doing battle” with De Villiers, you had better be amazingly prepared! She appears to be confident and comfortable in her quest for more gold.

“I am very excited to return to Fergus Falls,” De Villiers shared in an e-interview. “I had a memorable stay in 1996. I experienced brilliant water ski conditions, and the hospitality of America and the Fergus Falls community was unforgettable. My Mom and Dad joined me and shared the joy of my achieving third place in my first appearance at a world championships.” de Villiers did not win any individual event golds at the ‘96 tournament, but the experience she gained has led to stunning levels of success. At the Sydney Worlds in ‘98, Nadine won both the slalom and jump portions of the competition, and her tricks passes resulted in a strong second in that discipline. In her pursuit of the overall title, however, de Villiers settled with silver for second, as Sharon Dodgson prevailed by a very narrow margin. Will we see this sensation wearing shiny gold after the 12th Worlds? Could be. Nadine De Villiers is definitely driven.

Speaking of exceptional athletes who continue to pursue excellence at every turn, here comes Ron Scarpa! The two-time defending world overall champion (and let us not forget his title in ‘92) is 37 years old, but he is coming off a sensational U.S. Barefoot Open performance in Houston. After a rather “unscarpalike” performance in the U.S. Nationals, Scarpa went wild in the Open and set a pending world tricks record with 7,540 points. A number like that suggests the steady, salty Scarpa, already the most competitive, battle-tested warrior on the water, will be more than ready for Fergus Falls. It has been 20 years since the “Raging Bull” finished lower than second overall at a world championships (1980-3rd). What do you think?

You cannot overlook the talent St. Onge, Bowers, Kretchman, Sands, Wehner, New and the rest of the crew bring to the beach. This should be fun. Are you ready? Hang on! Welcome to our Worlds!

He's hard to miss....and impossible to forget!

Pete Beithon, Gary Johnson, Doug Koch and Banana George at the 1996 Worlds in Fergus Falls

The Local Organizing Committee, Competitors, and fans will all enjoy another visit from the colorful "Banana George" Blair.

Even in a large crowd, he's easy to spot! Just look for laughs and a splash of yellow!

Welcome to our Country...
